Punt Land is described in ancient Egyptian texts as the "Land of the Gods" and a region rich in resources. After Jean-Francois Champollion deciphered the pharaoh ' s hieroglyphics in 1822 AD, western scholars began reading the texts. Debates started as to the origins of the pharaohs and the location of Punt Land.

Deities of the Lost Lands This is a quick list of available deities. Some are more applicable than others for an ocean/pirate/island theme, but all exist within the context of the Lost Lands Campaign Setting. Most gods are described in detail within a Frog God Games supplement and I ' ve listed that supplement if I know it.

"A Land of Lost Gods" Tuesday, May 9, 2017. ... During ancient times, Mount Olympus was the home of the gods, Zeus took the Stefani peak as his throne, and the council of the gods took place on Mytikas peak (the tallest peak). The first known summit of the mountain wasn't until the beginning of the 20th century, as the Ancient Greeks refused to ...

The God of the Pit is an unidentified and unseen creature that lives deep beneath the caves under the Lost City. Not much is known about it, or how it came into existence. From its sounds, it might be a dinosaur, but this is unconfirmed. Worshiped as a god by the Sleestak, the creature is the source of many sacrifices. The Sleestak sacrifice their enemies to the beast to placate it.

Lost Gods doesn't fit neatly into any one genre. Purgatory being its main setting, there are demons and gods and whatnot, but here in the real world on Moran Island live both a witch and a Lilith, (all in one), as well as a fallen angel and the demonic ghosts of children. I guess Dark Fantasy would be the closest one could come to an accurate label.
